

A Mile in Their Shoes: Truth, Empathy, and Reconciliation

Scenes from the initiative's in-person event at Six Nations of the Grand River. Clockwise from top: a group photo of participants (alumni were given Indigenous ribbon skirts and shirts to wear at the event); cultural components were woven throughout, such as learning the Indigenous "friendship dance;" a survivor of the residential school system, Blanche Hill-Easton, shares her story; a view of the healing lodge with Indigenous advisers Ry Moran, Kanonhsyonne Janice Hill, and host and fire-keeper, Kahontakwas Diane Longboat.
